

Wayne Rooney shirt 'kicks-off' week for SLS competition winner

He thought it was all over.... then he scored first prize in the SLS draw!

Stephen Elliot, a Senior Technician in the department of Physics at Nottingham Trent University won a signed and framed Wayne Rooney England shirt at the 2010 Scientific Laboratory Show.

The prize draw took place at the end of the day which had lived up to it's billing as this year's industry leading event. The day also featured a conference programme, numerous exhibitions and entertainment from a caricaturist and a magician. The winners were all picked out of a hat – which had received a lot of throughout the day.

Peter Chapman, Managing Director at SLS said “The shirt was donated to us by a supplier and it was a truly fantastic prize. We are all football fans at SLS and were really excited to be able to offer something so unique to one of our lucky entrants.”

Having collected the signed and framed Wayne Rooney England shirt, Stephen returned home to his children to show off the premier prize.

Stephen says “It's going to go on the wall in the kid's playroom, they're very excited about that and it will look great!”

The Scientific Laboratory Show took place in June at the East Midlands Conference Centre. Prizes at the show also included a blood pressure monitor, champagne, Amazon vouchers and a digital camera – amongst many others – all of which were contributions from SLS suppliers.

Stephen concludes “I really enjoyed the show. I was delighted and amazed to have won first prize, I don't think I've ever won a top prize before. It was the perfect end to a thoroughly enjoyable day.”
